1. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.
2. Claims 1 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. More particularly, in each of these claims the literally unsupported and believed non conventional language "attached onto a target surface" is believed to be more desirably stated as, e.g. –adhered onto – one (or both if it is desired and proper support exists) of the acrylic polymer coated "front surface" and/or "back surface".
3. Claims 1 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Murata et al, substantially for the reasons set forth in Paragraph No. 081005, together with the following additional observations. More particularly, applicants argue (Response, page 3, 4th paragraph) that the reference teaches that a separator is not always necessary in the embodiments of the reference; which is true, but in view of the fact that a separator, i.e. a release sheet, is used in certain of the relied upon embodiments, irrelevant. As to his contention that the reference teaches that the separator, if used, may be a "conventional kind of release paper", the Examiner respectfully submits that this broad language would not just restrict one of ordinary skill to paper separators, but would also encompass such well known separators in the broad adhesive sheet or tape art as plastic films made of, e.g. polypropylene and the claimed PET. In support of his position, note as evidence of the state of the art newly cited Sakumoto et al, which is related to smooth adhesive surfaces found on adhesive tapes (note Col 2, lines 48-58 and claim 1) and which teaches (Col 1, line 64-Col 2, line 4) the equivalence of release coated papers with release coated films such as polypropylene and PET. In summary, the Examiner must still hold that the prima facie case of record has not been overcome.

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Note also Levens.
